Figure 3-2. An illustrated confusion matrix shows examples of true negatives (top left), false positives (top right), false negatives (lower left), and true positives (lower right)

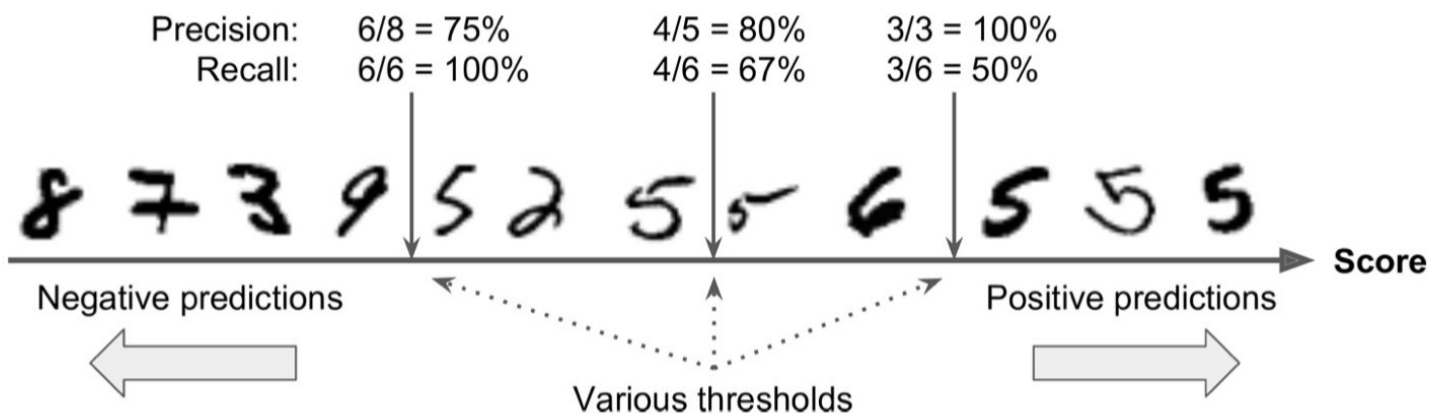

Figure 3-3. In this precision/recall trade-off, images are ranked by their classifier score, and those above the chosen decision threshold are considered positive; the higher the threshold, the lower the recall, but (in general) the higher the precision